

“Are you the one who is to come, or are we to wait for another?” John asks this question from prison as he nears death. Our gospel reading for this week creates an honest space where we can ask the same question. Is Jesus the one who will really save us? How do we trust the good news of God in Christ when we are in dire situations like John’s? What does it mean for us to wait for God to fulfill God’s promises? Even as we live in faith, it can be a freeing activity to explore honest questions about for what and whom we are waiting.

Come to worship with your questions, together we will wait.
